SSPC MEMBERSHIP: Real Value, Flexible Benefits

At SSPC, we understand value. Like you, we work to protect the value of public and private facilities and structures. We uphold the value provided by the safe and effective use of protective coatings and linings. We appreciate the value of quality products, services, and workmanship.

This is why we strive to provide our members benefits with real value, benefits they can really use. Benefits that can help you expand your knowledge, improve your skills, grow your business, and make better decisions.

Although a considerable value can be assigned to things like discounts on SSPC products and services, SSPC membership can bring you so much more.

The full value of membership is realized when you put your benefits to work.

The Journal of Protective Coatings And Linings

Every month, the JPCL brings SSPC members the latest news, trends, and developments affecting the protective coatings industry, along with useful case histories, maintenance strategies, and problem solving forums. However, the JPCL does more than just report. Readers use it to learn about new technologies and practices, as a directory of service providers, as a vehicle for reaching potential customers, and as a guide to upcoming events and training opportunities.

The JPCL puts you in touch with the worldwide protective coatings industry.

Member Standards Download

Every time we ask our members which of SSPC's products and services they find most valuable, the word "standards" nearly always tops the list. That's why we developed the Member Standards Download section on our web portal - the SSPC MarketPlace. The Member Standards Download provides members with unlimited access to all SSPC standards at no additional cost. Simply log in to MarketPlace using your email address and password, search for the standards you want, and download them to your computer.

Get access to the most widely used standards in the coatings industry, 24/7.

Training and Education

No matter where you are in your career, there's always something more to learn, and always opportunity to move ahead. SSPC can help get you there. Whether you're just starting out as a novice blaster or painter, moving up to project manager and specifier, or looking to enhance your credentials as a coatings inspector, SSPC training and education programs can get you where you want to go. SSPC members enjoy the added value of substantial discounts off non-member registration fees.

Member discounts provide added value, but the real value lies in training itself.

Certification Programs

For facility owners and other end users, SSPC certification programs help take the guesswork out of selecting industrial painting contractors, project specifiers, coatings inspectors, and other protective coatings professionals. For the certified company or individual, your SSPC certification shows potential clients that you maintain industry-standard capabilities and a commitment to exceptional quality. Your SSPC member discounts help you take advantage of certification at a considerable cost savings

Professional certification shows your dedication to value and quality.

Flexible Benefits for Company Members

What makes SSPC membership even more valuable to company members is the ability to customize a benefits package to suit their particular needs. By redeeming flexible benefit points, you get the most from your member dollars. For example:

Contractors

Contractors can use these points to place the most pertinent people on their member roster, and then concentrate on training or free SSPC publications. They can also work toward PCS, by choosing online courses at no cost.

Architects, Engineers, Consultants

Architects, engineers, and consultants might choose to focus on free publications, or they can apply their credits toward SSPC Protective Coatings Specialist (PCS) or Protective Coatings Inspector (PCI) certification.

Suppliers

Suppliers can focus on getting their reps the proper contact information in their region or territory to generate leads and increase sales. This program allows them to focus their points on additional members or exhibit discounts.

With flexible benefits, you choose the things that are most important to your business!

Facility Owners

Facility Owners have a multitude of options within this structure. They can have the right people on the membership roster and still acquire free books, save on training, and get full PACE conference registration coupons.

For further Flexible Benefits details - please see back page

Everything we do is designed to benefit the users and providers of protective coatings products and services. Your SSPC membership allows you to take the most cost-effective advantage of everything we offer.

“Membership in SSPC represents a valuable investment in your professional development. As a member, you will have access to a wealth of industry information, discounts on SSPC products and services as well as unparalleled networking opportunities.”

Benefits To Meet Individual Needs

SSPC membership is open to individuals as well as companies, but with a more structured group of benefits. However, all SSPC members enjoy the same core benefits: a subscription to the JPCL, access to the Members Download Area and other “members only” web content, discounts on publication purchases, reduced rates on training and individual certification, networking opportunities, and more.
